DARK WINTER

I was honored to play the part of the President in the exercise Dark Winter....

You often don't know what you don't know until you've been tested. And it's a lucky thing for the United States that - as the emergency broadcast network used to say: 'this is just a test, this is not a real emergency.'

But Mr. Chairman, our lack of preparation is a real emergency."

- The Honorable Sam Nunn in testimony before the House Government Reform Committee, Subcommittee on National Security, Veterans Affairs and International Relations, July 23, 2001

- The individual actions of US citizens will be critical to ending the spread of contagious disease;
- leaders must gain the trust and sustained cooperation of the American people.
- "The federal government has to have the cooperation from the American people. There is no federal force out there that can require 300,000,000 people to take steps they don't want to take"
